

Department of Archaeology

Language of Instruction: Turkish-German

Period of Study: 1+4 Years

Preparation Class: Yes (Compulsory German)

The main purpose of the Department of Archaeology is to bring in qualified personnel, researchers and scientists to our country, which is home to the rich, historical and cultural heritage of the world.

Mission of the Archaeology is The mission of the Department of Archaeology is to train expert researchers in the field, as well as to pioneer the research of the largely unexplored section of Bursa and its surroundings from the prehistory to the Ottoman Period, to introduce them to the world of science and culture through publications, and to carry out the necessary research and publications through the research center established in the mosaic branch, which is insufficiently researched, despite of the importance attached to it in our country.

The vision of the Department of Archaeology is to carry the archaeology of our country to the forefront with projects carried out jointly with scientists from various countries in different regions.

Academic Staff

The Department of Archeology has an academic staff consisting of three professors, two associate professor, a PhD lecturer and five research assistants. Prof. Dr. Mustafa Şahin has held the office as the head of the department since 2005.

Superior aspects of the Archaeology Department, the presence of the Mosaic Research Center (UMAM) and the Archaeology Research Center (ARAM) within our department allow the department to actively conduct scientific research and publish publications. The curriculum and its contents are created by taking into account that students have qualifications such as will be able to examine cultural assets in terms of iconography, style and chronology, have the awareness of protecting cultural assets, gain the ability to document archaeological data, use the camera correctly and in place in the editing of visual documents, take part in interdisciplinary studies and produce projects, take responsibility in archaeological projects, to be able to work in an interdisciplinary and interdisciplinary team, to make architectural and ceramic drawings technically, to understand and evaluate architectural drawings, and using ArcGIS, photoshop, autoCAD, freehand, netCAD etc. programs.

Archaeology Department's Library

Bursa Uludağ University, Faculty of Arts and Sciences, Department of Archaeology-David French Library was established to support the education, training, learning and research activities of our department students and academic staff. In the department library, which consists of a total of 7889 publications, including periodicals, separate editions and theses, it is possible for readers to use their personal computers and online databases such as Coin Archives, Dyabola, JSTOR, EBSCO, to use subscribed electronic journals, and to use the internet for scientific purposes.

Archaeological Excavations and Researches

İznik Lake Basilica Remains Underwater Excavations, Gölyazı Apollonia a.R. Excavations and Researches and excavations in the ancient cities of Priene, Limnae/Civetot Castle Excavations, Bursa and Its Surroundings and Yalova Province Coasts Ancient Harbor and Underwater Surveys offer the students the chance to actively gain professional experience.

Erasmus / Farabi Opportunities

Agreements have been made with nearly 10 countries and 22 Universities, mainly Germany, Slovakia, Denmark, Portugal, Greece, Czech Republic, Italy and Austria. Within the scope of the Farabi Exchange Program, agreements were made with the archaeology departments of approximately 15 different higher education institutions in the country.

Main Fields of Employment for Graduates of the Department;

- Museums affiliated to the Ministry of Culture and Tourism, private individuals and organizations,
- Cultural and Natural Heritage Preservation Boards,
- Written and Verbal Press,
- Tourism-related fields,
- Art and culture-related units of local governments or the private sector,
- KUDEB (Protection Enforcement and Control Offices)

Why Bursa Uludağ University Archaeology Department?

In our department, intensive theoretical education is given for a total of 10 semesters, two of which are compulsory German preparatory classes, and there is also a compulsory internship to be performed in excavations or museums. Our department is also open to Master's and Doctorate programs, and postgraduate education is offered to our students who have completed their undergraduate education.

2020 Minimum Score : 232,51379

2020 Maximum Score : 328,98187

Score Type : EA

Success rank (according to min. score):736.474

Success rank (according to min. Score):189.015

Contact: Bursa Uludağ University, Faculty of Arts and Sciences, Department of Archaeology,16240-Görükle, Bursa

Department's Web Page: <http://arkeoloji.uludag.edu.tr/>

E-mail: arkeoloji@uludag.edu.tr

Facebook: @arkeouludag Instagram: @uuarkeoloji